

NEW $1⁹⁹

WEEKLY IN TOUCH

COURTENEY
& JENNIFER

Tough choice: Babies or another year of Friends?

J. LO

Look who she's turning into

GEORGE CLOONEY

I don't want to be single

BEH SI

health&happiness

GREAT IDEAS FOR BETTER LIVING

Q Will there ever be a cure for cellulite?

A This could be it: mesotherapie, a brand new cellulite-zapping technique just in from Europe.

Here's how it works: Natural plant extracts and homeopathic solutions are injected into the "trouble spot," stimulating and breaking down the tissue's orange-peel texture. In Europe, practitioners use 8 to 26 injections per leg. Here, Dr. Lionel Bisson, D.O., has perfected the technique by using 200 to 300 tiny injections per leg.

"If a client has big saddlebags, eight injections are not enough to cover the area," explains Bisson, a doctor at The Longevity Lounge in New York. Most clients need 10 to 15 sessions. Some people see a difference right away. Others need three treatments for visible results. For more information, go to caringmedical.com.

▲ Perfect Jennifer Aniston is saddlebag-free.

THE SKINNY: Tiny needles penetrate only millimeters beneath the skin, you feel a pinch, which means the real pain comes with the price tag: $350-$500 per session.

Jack Osbourne: What's causing his private pain

